1 Supported Data Sources

Recommind data source connectors include but are not limited to the following systems, data repositories, and standards.

If no connector currently exists for a system or application, Recommind will work with the customer to create a connector. Two-way connectors are available for certain applications.

Note: Not all of the connectors are included in all products. You may need additional licensing for certain systems.

Note: For certain data sources, custom configuration will be required by Recommind Support.
